INTRODUCTION

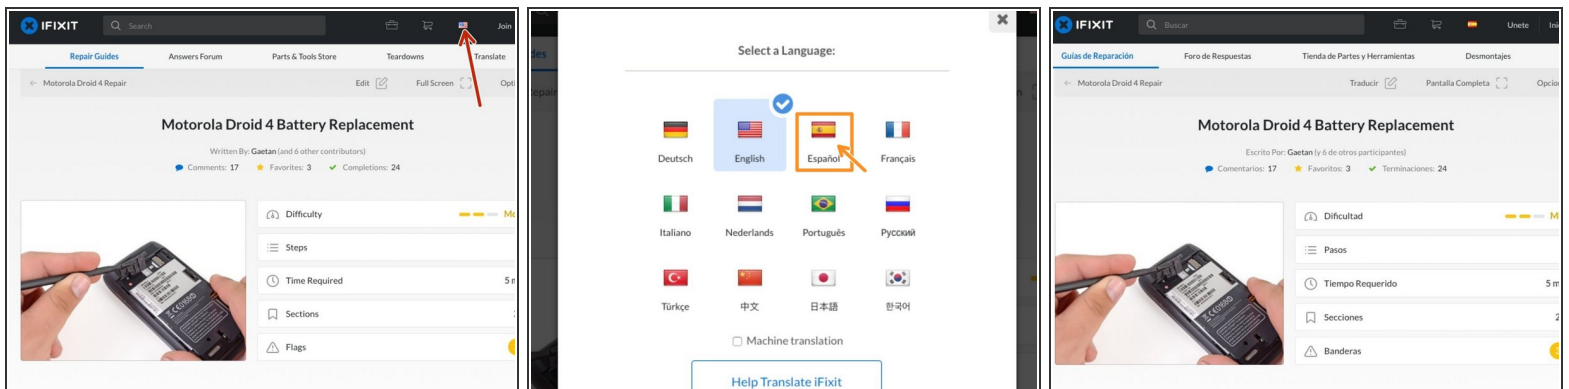

In this guide, you will learn how to grab and embed an HTML code that allows you to publish an iFixit guide or teardown onto another site.

Step 1 — View teardown or guide

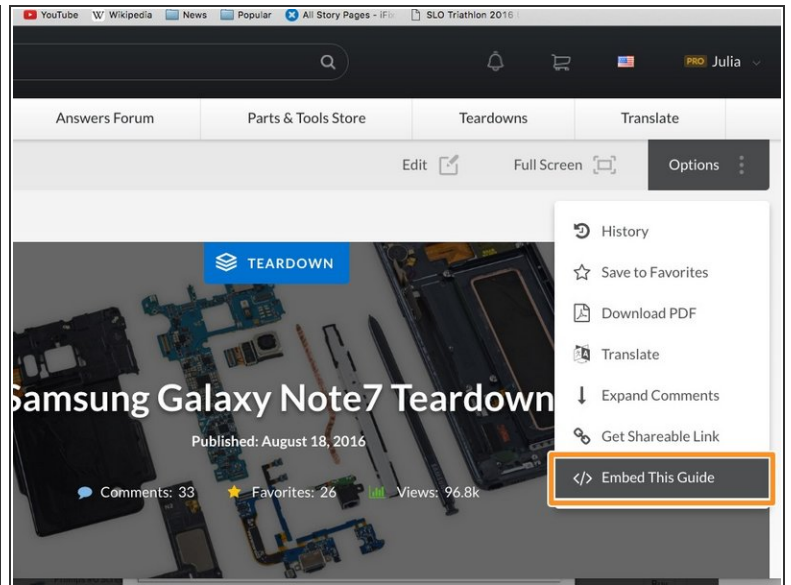

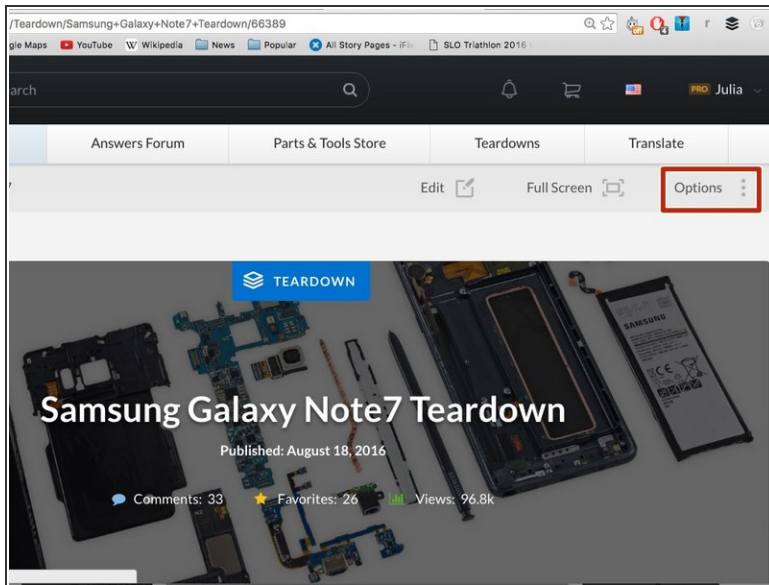

- Navigate to the teardown or guide page that you would like to embed.

Step 2 — Select language (optional)

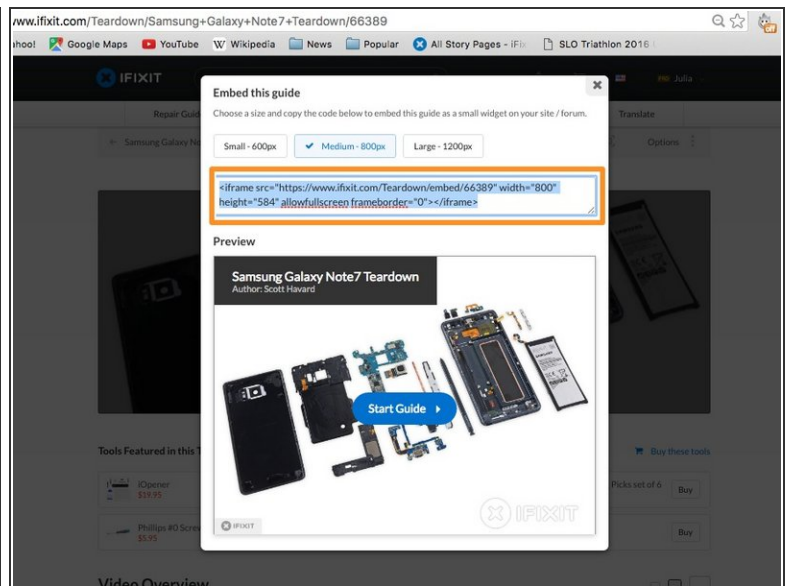

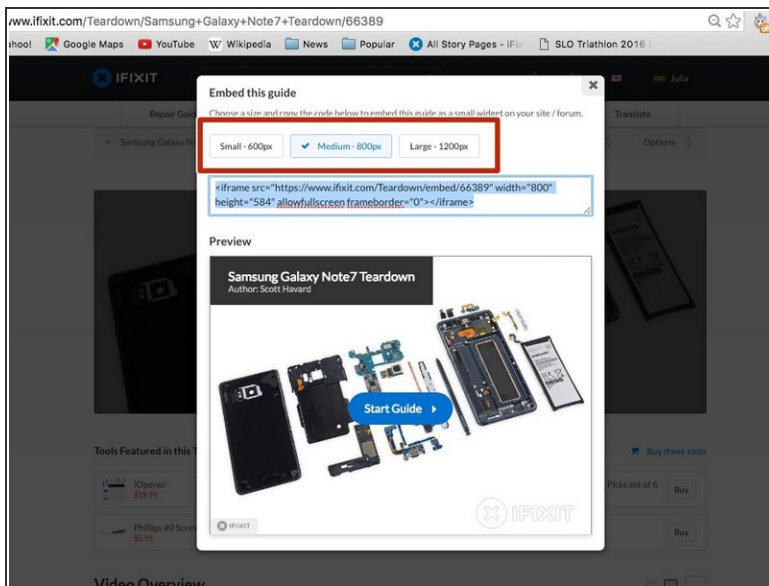

- If you wish to embed the guide or teardown in a different language than the one currently selected:
 - Click on the flag icon in the upper right of the header bar.
 - In the pop-up window, click to select the desired language.

Step 3 — Create embed code

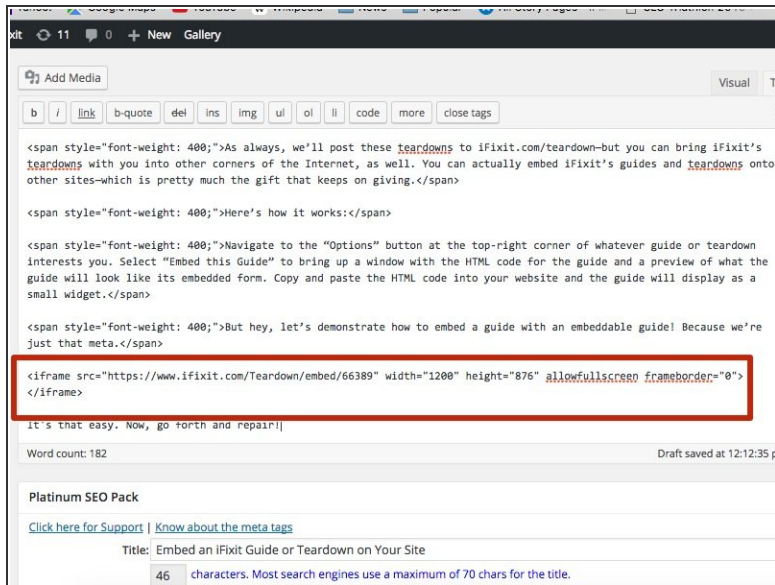

- Click the "Options" button on the upper-righthand corner of the page.
- Select "Embed This Guide" from the dropdown menu.

Step 4 — Copy embed code

- A pop-up window will appear with an HTML embed code and a preview of your embedded guide.
- Select the size you wish the embedded guide to be.
- Copy the auto-generated HTML code.

Step 5 — Embed guide on your site

As always, we'll post these teardowns to ifixit.com/teardown-but you can bring ifixit's teardowns with you into other corners of the Internet, as well. You can actually embed ifixit's guides and teardowns onto other sites—which is pretty much the gift that keeps on giving.

Here's how it works:

Navigate to the "Options" button at the top-right corner of whatever guide or teardown interests you. Select "Embed this Guide" to bring up a window with the HTML code for the guide and a preview of what the guide will look like its embedded form. Copy and paste the HTML code into your website and the guide will display as a small widget.

But hey, let's demonstrate how to embed a guide with an embeddable guide! Because we're just that meta.

<iframe src="https://www.ifixit.com/Teardown/embed/66389" width="1200" height="876" allowfullscreen frameborder="0"></iframe>

It's that easy. Now, go forth and repair!
